 Huether explained that public artwork should be strong and last for a long time, and the ‘Circle of Life’ throws light on endurance, unity, self-fulfillment and relationships, reverberating the principles of Caesars Republic Scottsdale for its visitors for the impending years.

The ‘Circle of Life’s large steel circle validates strength and permanency, and its erratic breadth, wider on the bottom, narrower on top, is projected to send allegiance and survival as signs, that goes by the expression of standing strong through thick and thin. At the heart of the sculpture is an active, color-changing compass that juxtaposes constancy demonstrated in the stainless steel with the fluidity of ordinary life. The compass represents unity, wholeness, parity, and acceptance.
